Harper's Bazar

The twenty-ninth year of HARPER'S BAZAR, beginning in January, 1896, finds it maintaining its deserved reputation both as a fashion Journal and a weekly periodical for home reading. Every week the BAZAR presents beautiful tellettes for various occasions, Sandoz, Baude, and Chapuis illustrate and engrave the newest designs from the finest medel in Paris and Berlin, New York Fashions epitomizes current styles in New York. A fertnightly pattern-sheet supplement with diagrams and directions enables women to cut and make their own gowns, and is of great value to the professional modists as N. well as to the amateur dressmaker, Children's Clething receives constant attention. Fashions for Men are described in full detail by a man-about-town. Our Paris Letter, by Kathar-INE DE FOREST, is a sprightly weekly recital of fashion, gossip, and social doings in Paris, given by a clever woman in an sutertaining way.

Both the serials for 1896 are the work of American women. Mrs. Gerald, by Maria Louise Poor, is a striking story of Mew England life, Mary E. Wilkins, in Jerome, a Poor Han, discusses the always interesting problems of the re-lations between laber and capital. Short stories will be written by the best authors.

LORD AND PLOWMAN.

Hawthorns and laburnums were in flower when John Constable presented himself at Brookland farm and asked to see Farmer Willoughby.

"Father is down in the fields. He will not be back before 19," said beautiful Dora Willoughby, who had responded to his knock.

Constable took a seat upon a chair neaf the open door.

A narrow passage separated the kitchen from the cool dairy where Dora was work-ing. From Constable's position by the kitchen door she could be seen as she flitted about, but, as if this were not enough he arose when she began to make the but-ter into pats, with the pretense of examining the print.

"I am well acquainted with that pattern," he said, "but I did not know who made the butter."

"I suppose you have seen it in the dai-ries and markets," she went on. "There is a great demand for our butter. We could sell three times as much if we had if

He learned that she was the eldest of six children; that, on account of her mother's delicate health, most of the housekeeping duties fell to her share, and he was sure that they were all done faithfully and well and that she was the life and soul of Brookland farm. "We have just lost our plowman," sh said at length. "Poor Joe Summers! He died last week, and father is looking for some one to take his place."

"So I heard," said Constable. "I came to see about the situation."
"You! But you don't look like a plow man," said Dora.
"Don't I?" said he. "Then what do look like?"

"Like a gentleman," she answered.

"I am a plowman nevertheless."
"I think I hear father's footstep," she murmured, turning hastily to glance into the farmyard. "You have not had long to wait. And thus, for two young hearts the heavens were opened, and each humble task became glorified in the light of love, for Constable and Dora had fallen simply and deeply in love with each other, and theirs was the faith that would withstand all trials and shocks. Day by day it was strengthened by slight services and mutual help, and its growth was silent and unsuspected by the family, who would have discountenanced an attachment between their precious Dora and a common laborer.

For the Willoughbys were of a proud old yeoman race, and they counted on giving their daughter, with an ample dower, to one of the wealthy young farmers of the How John Constable worked under her eyes may be imagined. Early and late, wherever a hand was required, there was he, ever ready, ever willing. Hundreds of boxes of gold, silver, ivory, alabaster, onyx, marble and other sub-stances have been recovered from the Egyptian tombs. When the dead were buried, these boxes were filled with per-fumes and placed in the tomb. Many still retain the odor of the perfumes with which they were once filled.

The First Gold Pens. The first gold pens made in this country were all manufactured by hand, the gold being cut from strips of the metal by sols-sors, and every subsequent operation being performed by hand. These handmade gold pens cost from $5 to $20 and were far inferior to the machine made article of the present day.
